Femme Collective

Femme Collective is an inter-disciplinary arts community designed to empower female or female identifying artists and designers. Gender biases are present within many areas of the arts including the inaccurate narrative of art history, art education, the gender disparity of artists on display within museums and galleries as well as the undervaluing of woman within auction houses. Whereas misogyny is present in all these areas, it has been an ongoing issue and a more prominent issue within the commercial sector of the arts.

This project aims to create a website that helps new artists develop their careers in an uplifting and supportive environment surrounded by like-minded individuals.
