Yao Chunchun, MA Contemporary Arts China
The Silence of She

Do Asian women always remain silent when they are assaulted? I got an answer when I first experienced being robbed and sexually harassed here.

The Silence of She is a subproject under series project Grafting. It consists of stop-motion animation and installation.

It was inspired by the plants that grow in the city from between the bricks or in the cracks of the stones. These resilient lives have inspired me as I have just started to live in a foreign country. I have used Chinese ingredients and traditional craftsmanship as the protagonists of my work. In this project they are grafted into the environment and 'grow' in their own way.
