Exploring Cream Glue as a Medium for Art Therapy in China

My project is to reveal the therapeutic areas where cream glue and art therapy are effective. In delving into this dynamic synergy, I have meticulously explored the potential therapeutic properties of the cream glue. Using its ability to cling to any surface in my practice, I experimented on natural objects and felt the healing power of art as a catalyst for emotional release. Finally, the production process is recorded and becomes a teaching video to guide the audience to experience an interesting art therapy with cream glue. This moment represents an exciting intersection where tactile expression and visual storytelling combine to unleash the potential for a novel form of therapy beyond the confines of traditional art therapy.
